Three New Somerset Police Officers Introduced

The newest additions to the Somerset Police Department were formally introduced last night to the Somerset City Council during a brief ceremony.

Officers Timothy Miller, Daniel Lawhorn, and William Cowan took their oath on Friday, September 26, 2008. They graduated from the 18-week basic training class at the Kentucky Department for Criminal Justice Training earlier that day.

Miller is a 2003 graduate of Pulaski County High School. He came to SPD after working for the Kentucky Department of Corrections' North Point Training Center where he was assigned to their tactical team. Officer Miller earned a physical training award while in the academy.

Officer Daniel Lawhorn is a 1995 graduate of Pulaski County High School and served eight years in the U.S. Navy. He earned the physical training award and the top academic award during his training.

Officer William Cowan is a 2004 graduate of Southwestern High School and holds an associate's degree from Somerset Community College. He previously worked for North Point Training Center.

The new officers are now assigned to field training officers for the next 14 weeks. The training officers will provide them with additional skills in all areas of being a patrol officer.
